

Resource Sheet for Right Relationship with Indigenous Peoples

The following resources are for Meetings and individuals to increase their understanding of Indigenous experiences (especially in our region) as well as the relationship between Quakers and Indigenous Peoples. This list was assembled by the Right Relationship Resource Group in 2020, which has the aim of helping Friends Meetings in New England to do the spiritual groundwork required to move deeper into the work of right relationship with Native Americans in our region. Feedback on the resource list can be sent to rightrelationship@neym.org.

History:

Map of Connecticut circa 1625

*Our Beloved Kin: A New History of the King Philip's War*

A book and project website by Lisa Brooks

*The Drafting and Enactment of the Maine Indian Claims Settlement Act*

A 2017 paper reviewing this key legislation from Maine.

Abenaki Connections by Marge Bruchac

One family's story gives a sense of the stories many indigenous people experienced with colonization. Takes place in what is now known as Western Massachusetts, 1837-present.

The Sovereignty and Goodness of God by Mary Rowlandson (1682)

An early narrative from Mary Rowlandson, a minister's wife, who was taken captive in Lancaster, MA during King Philip's War.

The Arrow Over the Door by Joseph Bruchac

This a fact-based account of the story also known as the White Feather. Young adult level reading.

A Lenape Among the Quakers by Dawn G Marsh

A history of a Lenape woman in Chester County, PA. There is much to appreciate about the mechanisms of colonialization and of our own Quaker history, both sad and encouraging.

Flight of the Sparrow by Amy Belding Brown

A historical fiction novel that presents a wider view of colonial life in Massachusetts.

1491: New Revelations of the Americas Before Columbus by Charles C. Mann

New England Outpost by Richard I Melvoin (1989)

An in-depth book on the Pocumtuck homeland just before English settlement through the development of the Town of Deerfield and the several significant attacks on the town in 1682 and 1704. It moves at an easy pace and again gives a flavor of the conflicting stories of the early colonial period in New England.

Captors and Captives by Kevin Sweeney and Evan Haefeli

This recent book focuses on Deerfield MA and the 1704 raid but in the context of the geopolitics of the day. It also gives a good sense of how English captives were treated by the various parties. There is an interesting view of why a number of captives did not want to come back.

The Unredeemed Captive by John Demos

This book is the story of the captured minister of Deerfield in 1704 and his daughter. While Rev. John Williams wanted to return so badly and was 'redeemed', his daughter Eunice refused to return and even refused to speak English with her father when they met while he was trying to get her to return. Questions explored include the whys of this in colonial New England.

Sisters in Spirit: Haudenosaunee (Iroquois) Influence on Early American Feminists by Sally Roesch Wagner

We Want Equal Rights: How Suffragists Were Influenced by Haudenosaunee Women by Sally Roesch Wagner
Young adult reading level

Iroquoisan Women: The Gantowisas by Barbara Alice Mann

A deep look through time and tradition into the Haudenosaunee understanding of how to live

An Indigenous Peoples' History of the United States by Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz

*Phips Proclamation*, an act which resulted in the number of tribes in Maine reduced from 16-30 to the four tribes that exist today (historical document)
